

A Presentation on the EvalYouth Initiative

Bianca Montrosse-Moorhead & Marie Gervais
EvalYouth Co-Chairs

*English Translation of Videos from Young and Emerging Evaluators (YEE)
(In Order of Appearance in the Presentation)*

Karlygath Nurmanbetova, YEE from International Program Evaluation Network (IPEN)

My name is Karlygach. I am from Kyrgyzstan. Kyrgyzstan is in the scope of IPEN. EvalYouth, because it unites young evaluators from all over the world, it inspires the emerging evaluators to join, to improve their knowledge and to gain experience in the sphere of evaluation. EvalYouth will give an opportunity to our activeness through different educational courses, disciplines, discussions on overcoming issues that might appear during the evaluation and by enlarging the cooperation among young evaluators and promoting the practical innovations. One of the things that the EvalYouth can do for emerging evaluators is to help the national evaluation organizations to formulate a concrete strategy of work with young evaluators where all of the issues and goals will be defined. And, in this case the work with youth will be more effective as we think, this way it will be visible how and in what way to work with young emerging evaluators. Thank you for your attention! Good luck to all participants!

Meshack Muta, YEE from African Evaluation Association (AfrEA)

Hello, my name is Meshack Mutua from Kenya. EvalYouth can bring together the youth involved in evaluation at the global level, to learn, discuss and find solutions to challenges that affect them as a marginalized category in the evaluation profession, and thus contribute in the development process. EvalYouth can provide mentorship, peer-to-peer (P2P) learning, experience sharing, networking and employment opportunities among the young evaluators.

Anis By, YEE from Middle East and North Africa (MENA)

Hello, my name is Anis By. I think the best way to advocate EvalYouth is to succeed my mission as a leader of Tunisian Evaluation Network. Through our activities in the TEN, we try to provide training opportunities that meet the needs of young evaluators. As part of our advocacy, we turn to the young officials and MPs. We are working to strengthen our membership with young people (women and men) who are interested in the evaluation. And finally, we try to participate in all initiatives at regional and international level interested in youth evaluators.

Umi Hanik, YEE from Indonesian Development Evaluation Community (InDEC) and Asia-Pacific Evaluation Association (APEA)

Hello, my name is Umi Hanik. Monitoring and Evaluation (M&E) promotion and advocacy is significant to foster better M&E practices in Indonesia. Hence through my profession as M&E specialist and through Indonesian Development Evaluation Community (InDEC), we conducted various activities including M&E training and knowledge sharing to promote and advocate M&E to all development practitioners in Indonesia.

Miché Ouedraogo, YEE from Réseau Francophone d'Evaluation (RFE)

My name is Miché Ouédraogo, an emerging evaluator of Burkina Faso and a very active member of RFE. EvalYouth is a great networking opportunity internationally. The most exciting side of EvalYouth is this opportunity of sharing knowledge and experiences to promote emerging evaluators worldwide. EvalYouth is also a promising opportunity to support emerging evaluators at the national level through VOPEs. Let's commit ourselves to this new network and promote innovation and sharing! Good conference to you all and viva emerging evaluators!

Source: Montrosse-Moorhead, B., & Gervais, M. (2015, September). A presentation on the EvalYouth initiative. Invited talk given at the First Virtual Conference for Emerging Evaluators, European Evaluation Society.

<http://www.emergingevaluators2015.org/>

Get involved in the global conversation!

<http://www.ioce.net/forum/forum/open-forums/evalyouth>

Connect with us
on Google+

Connect with us
on LinkedIn

Like our EvalYouth Page

@Eval_Youth